A concentrated solution of sincerity, common sense, and good will . . . distilled by experience and observation . . . bubbling over with enthusiasm and effervescing with condiality . . . a compound of energy, endurance, and earnestness . . . an experiment brought to a successful conclusion in the union of fervor, vision, and tolerance mixed together with a dash of inspiration and a sprinkling of emotion.

EDWARD I. COOK Dean of Extra-Curricular Activities

The Dean of Extra-Curricular Activities automatically assumes the duty of being community shoulder on which all activities may weep. He is the direct link between faculty and student administrations and as official chaperon and advisor makes a business of the college's pleasure.

H. M. SKIDMORE Dean of Instruction

Responsibility for arrangement of all courses in the curriculum is due in the main to the Dean of Instruction who must take charge of the mammoth task of choosing classes to suit the needs of two thousand students. Not so well known, perhaps, is this office but its importance and fine handling cannot be over-estimated.

JOHN LAURENCE SEYMOUR

DRAMATIC ART DEPARTMENT

Experience in production of both classic and modern drama, from actual characterizations in public appearances to assumption of all technical duties connected with the presentation of a play is the basis of the continued success of the Sacramento Junior College dramatic art department. Under the general directorship of John Laurence Seymour who has handled the affairs of the department this season with the capable assistance of Miss Frances Frater an enrollment of over — students has been attracted to the various courses offered to those majoring in drama or merely interested in one of the short courses.

Mr. Seymour has this year offered instruction in beginning and advanced acting, history of the theatre, Shakespeare, expression, and the short course in acting. Miss Frater has included in her program a short course in acting, make-up, and voice and diction. Classes in stage construction and lighting were dropped from this year's curriculum.

Work on the various productions is done almost entirely by students . . . there are student electricians, stage managers, stage hands, property men . . . make-up is applied by both players and students in the class in make-up. All students majoring in drama are assured of at least one public appearance.

While a great many experienced actors and actresses will graduate in June, there is a most promising crop of newcomers who will beyond doubt carry on the high traditions of the Sacramento Junior College dramatic art department.

"YOU AND I"

The Junior College Players opened the current season with a contemporary comedy by the popular American playright, Philip Barry. This charming play combines a serious problem and a semi-tragic ending with a general lightness and gaiety. The leading role was taken by Russell Azzara who was so successful in both of last year's plays. Azzara gave a finished and sympathetic performance in the role of the artist who was forced to choose between love and a career. Evelyn Culver, another of last year's students, was charming as Nancy, the perfect wife who couldn't quite compensate Matey for the loss of his beloved career. George Sutter as Ricky, the son of Matey and Nancy, and Leone Arnold as Ricky's sweetheart—both newcomers in the Junior College—were delightful and natural as the young pair who were faced with the same problem Matey had been forced to solve. Thanks to the sacrifice of Matey and Nancy, Ricky was able to have both career and wife. John Mollar, one of our most versatile players, was fine as Geoffrey Nichols, the popular novelist. Owen Hiddleson, another newcomer, was amusing as the soap manufacturer. June Phares took the part of Etta, the painfully beautiful and still more painfully dumb maid, bent on selfimproveemnt.

The fire which destroyed most of our scenery made it impossible for "You and I" to be staged with the elaborate settings of past Junior College productions. However, "You and I" was quite attractively done with modern furniture, against a background of curtains. In this production, Director John Lawrence Seymour was capably assisted by Charlotte Wilson as assistant director and stage manager. The make-up of the cast was supervised by Miss Frater, and the lighting designed by Marshall Brooke.

A NEW WAY TO PAY OLD DERTS

The second play of the season was presented at the Stanford Junior High School on December seventh and eighth, under the direction of Mr. Seymour, who was assisted by Charlotte Wilson.

This play, which has the reputation of being the most popular Elizabethan comedy with the exception of Shakespeare's plays, has a varied cast of characters, both serious and comic. Its people have the bold colors and somewhat exaggerated personalities of the comedy of humours. John Moller was quite dashing as "merry master Wellborn," the hero who found a new and unusual way to pay his old debts,—a way, which, unfortunately, is not practicable in all cases. Russell Azzarra gave another brilliant performance as Sir Giles Overreach, an extortioner, and the villain of the piece. His spectacular fall in the mad scene in the last act of the play was particularly effective.

Lady Allworth, a charming widow, was played by Mildred Houston. Margaret Overreach and Tom Allworth, the young lovers, were pleasingly done by Ruth Freidburg and Margaret Gleason who played Margaret in alternation, and by Laurence Davis who played Tom Allworth.

That tipsy low-comedy pair—Tapwell and Froth—were acted by Dorothy Pratt and Ruth Gartler.

Marrall, the shyster lawyer, was characterized in broad strokes by John Ferguson. In his case the reward for vice was to be kicked off the stage.

Lord Lovell was played by George Sutter. Charlotte Wilson, Joe and John Coppin, and Charles Rajnus were the amusing and spoiled servants of Lady Allworth. Other members of the cast were Mary Lynn, Martha Minter, Sarah Heilbron, and Ruth Gardner.

This production was staged against a background of curtains. The costumes were elaborate and strikingly beautiful. The make-ups, many of which were unusual character studies, were done by the make-up class under the supervision of Miss Frater. The lighting was designed by Marshall Brooke.

THE TEMPEST

The third Junior College dramatic production of the season equalled its two predecessors both in costumes and acting. Shakespeare's last original and uncollaborated play, "The Comedy of the Tempest," was presented in two public performances on the evenings of March first and second at the Stanford Junior High School Auditorium. A private performance was sponsored by the educational department for Sacramento school children on Friday afternoon.

Painted forests against a background of luxurious velvet curtains furnished a pleasing setting for the play, the action of which takes place on an uninhabited island. Changes of scene were designated by slight shifts in curtain arrangements and the addition of a few stage properties. Clever effects were obtained by the lighting which was designed by Marshall Brooke. "The Tempest' is full of human interest, fun and magic like "A Midsummer Night's Dream," but with a more wistful beauty and a deeper significance.

The characters were well cast as to ability. Several important characters were double cast and both parties did equal justice to Russell Azzara and John Moller, as the savage Caliban, their roles. had two different but fascinating interpretations. Dorothy Pratt, as the sweet and innocent Miranda, and Elizabeth Gutherie, a more animated Miranda, proved that freshman can do fine things. Perhaps the most outstanding part in the play was Shakes-peare's brilliant character of Ariel, delightfully and successfully portrayed by Margaret Gleason. Ariel dominated practically every one of the numerous scenes in which she appeared. Miss Gleason was charming in her depiction of the fairy sprite and her delightful singing voice added much to the difficult role. Kind old Prospero was played by John Ferguson and Ferdinand by Forrest Darby, both newcomers.

Excellent bits of humor were inserted by the drunken trio of Trinculo, Stephano, and Caliban, the first of the two parts enacted by Joe Silva and George Sutter. These scenes rivalled Ariel in popularity with the audience. Mystery was added by the masque in which Prospero calls upon the spirits for entertainment. The appearance of goddesses, nymphs, dancers, monsters and divers spirits form a striking picture as well as furnishing a lull in the action.

ADRIENNE LECOUVREUR

A very successful drama season was brought to a brilliant close with the presentation of "Adrienne Lecouvreur" on April 19th and 20th at Stanford Junior High School.

The choice of the play was admirable, "Adrienne Lecouvreur" being an example of a perfectly constructed play. The plot is artistic, dramatic, and fast moving, never lacking in interest, but moving swiftly on to its tragic conclusion.

It was a delightful and beautiful spectacle to watch. The costumes were authentic and rich and both men and women wore powdered wigs. Evelyn Culver in the title role portrayed the life story of the famous French actress Adrienne Lecouvreur who was famous at the Comedie Francais in 1730. Miss Culver interpretated the role intelligently. The death scene was particularly beautiful and emotional, yet artistically restrained.

Russell Azzara and John Moller completed a very outstanding repertoire of plays. In the past two years these young actors have taken leading roles in every production, and have created many fine characterizations. Russell Azzara played Michonnet. He reincarnated this lovable old man, who once actually lived and loved Adrienne. Adrienne's lover, Maurice, was capably played by John

The Abbe de Chazevil, played by Laurence Davis, and the Princess de Bovillon, played by Dorothy Pratt, were two finecharacterizations, the Abbe being worldly and shrewd and the princess, polished, subtle, and villainous. George Sutter gave a very good interpretation of the role of the Others in the cast included: Duchess D'Aumont, Ruth Gartler; Marquise de Sancerse, Elizabeth Guthrie; Countess de Beauveau, Sarah Louise Heilbron; Mdlle. Joevenot, Ruth Friedburg; Mdlle. Dongeville, Dorothy Lipps; Susanne, Martha Minter; Poirson, Elizabeth Svetich; Quenault, John Ferguson; Servant, John Dulton; Call Boy, Marshall Brooke.

A delightful feature that added greatly to the charm of the play was the music used. It was taken from the opera "Adriand Lecouvreur" by Franceres Cilea, and played by John Coppin, violinist, and Arthur McCue, pianist.

The make-up class received congratulations upon the splendid manner in which the difficult make-ups were created. This class was under the instruction of Miss Frances Frater. Martha Minter acted as make-up mistress.

The electrical department continued to give the drama class support of the highest quality.

This department was under the supervision of Marshall Brooke, assisted by Max Doan. Nanne Yost for the second time was appointed the responsible position of stage manager. Under her efficient direction the back stage staff worked in perfect union. The technical staff included: George Patterson, master of properties; John Dutton, prompter; Martha Minter, assistant prompter; John Ferguson, wardrobe master, assisted by Mildred Huston and Beverly Calvert; Elizabeth Gutherie, call

The outlook for the Junior College debating team at the beginning of the Fall semester was not particularly encouraging. Only three experienced debaters remained on the team—Elwood Williams, Tom MacBride, and Laurence Schei. The new members, however, fulfilled their positions very efficiently, and showed great promise for a better record in the Spring and Fall semesters of 1934. The new members were: Bill Milton, Clarence Willard, Alta Jane Allewelt, and Robert Mallett. The debate coaches—Mr. Ralph W. Everett and Mr. James S. Hughes—deserve a great deal of credit for their able guidance.

The topic for the first debate was "Resolved: That the United States government should own and operate the railroads." The date for this debate was October 26th. Sacramento's affirmative team—Miss Allewelt and Mr. Williams—met the Modesto Junior College team at Sacramento. The Modesto Junior College team, composed of two excellent speakers—Kenneth Bock and Kenneth Grimm—was awarded a unanimous decision by the three judges.

The negative team—Mr. Milton and Mr. Williard—traveled to Santa Rosa where they debated Merle Hanmer and Marion Murray. They were also defeated by a two-to-one decision.

In spite of the rather gloomy start, the Sacramento team prepared enthusiastically for the second league debate on the question "Resolved: That the United States should lead in tariff reductions." This question was debated December 8th. The affirmative was upheld by Miss Allewelt and Mr. MacBride who had as their opponents Miss Adria Wiseman and Marion Murray of Santa Rosa Junior College. The Sacramento team won by a two-to-one decision and the number of points scored was far above that of the Santa Rosa teams, thus giving Sacramento high point honors.

The negative team debated at Modesto on the same date. Mr. Schei and Mr. Mallet met Mr. Bacon and Mr. Downing of the Modesto Junior College. The Sacramento team lost the hard-fought question by a two-to-one decision. The decision was lost by only thirteen points out of a 300-point judges' decision.

The topics for all of the league debates were extremely timely and interesting when considered in the light of the present economic policies of the United States government.

As the Pioneer goes to press, tentative plans are being made for several other debates this season, but, as yet, definite dates have not been decided upon.

FOOTBALL

Opening the 1933 drive for the Northern California Junior College football title, Coach Harry A. "Hack" Applequist, famed mentor of the Sacramento J. C. Panthers, found himself with the staggering total of five lettermen returning from the previous season. Two of these were linemen, Captain-elect Tom Callaghan and Byron Gard, while the other three were backfield men, Doug McRae, Bob Stafford, and Jack Woerner. This number dwindled to four when Byron Gard dropped out of school.

With this small nucleus Hack Applequist was faced with the most difficult job of his career in trying to fashion an experienced, fighting, smooth eleven to represent Sacramento J. C. The fact that Menlo, Marin, Modesto, and San Mateo all had veteran squads with which to work added no little to the handicap already imposed.

The Panthers went through an up and down season, winning some impressive victories and losing some questionable games. Questionable to the extent that it seemed the Panthers could have won them easily had they had the real will to go out and never let up.

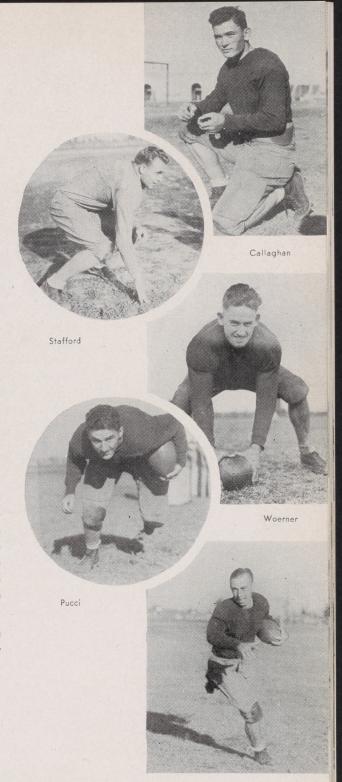

Sacramento J. C. opened the 1933 season with a 20-8 victory over San Jose State, champions of the Far Western Conference. The Panthers scored first in this game when, after an exchange of punts in the first quarter, San Jose fumbled on its own 17-yard line and Bob Hanna recovered for Sacramento on the Sparton 10-yard mark. McRae, veteran Panther half, skirted his own right end on the next play to cross the goal standing up. Jim Hall circled right end for the conversion. San Jose tallied two points in the second quarter when Parker's punt was blocked and recovered by Parker behind the Sacramento goal line, thus allotting San Jose 2 points. In the third quarter Whipple and Coe of Sacramento made some nice runs from their own 40 to the San Jose 2-yard line, where Coe took the sphere over to bring the score to 13-2. Coe passed to Barbieri for the conversion. San Jose punched its way to a score in the fourth quarter after a 50-yard sustained drive, but failed to convert. In the closing moments of the game San Jose tried desperately to bring up their total with long passes, but Doug McRae stopped this short when he intercepted a Spartan pass on the 50-yard mark, shook off half the San Jose team, and rambled to another Panther touchdown.

The next Saturday Sacramento J. C. defeated Chico State, another four-year institution, by a close 7-0 score. The Panther touchdown came in the fourth quarter when Bob Hanna, S. J. C. tackle, knifed his way through the Wildcat line to block a Chico punt on the 7-yard stripe. The ball bounded over the goal where Barbieri, Sacramento end, fell on it for the score. McRae converted. Chico then pounded its way to the Panther 2-yard line with a first down, but Sacramento held for four vicious thrusts and the game was won.

The Panthers opened their conference season against Menlo J. C. and eeked out a 7-6 victory by margin of a conversion. The teams were pretty evenly matched and Sacramento held Menlo on three different occasions within the Panther 5-yard line with first and goal to go. Bob Coe scored the Sacramento touchdown via a 5-yard dash around end. Menlo scored when they blocked a Panther punt and recovered the ball on the one-foot line. Fischer went over on a buck through center.

Modesto Junior College invaded the Panther lair in the next conference game and completely upset the dope cart. The first quarter saw Sacramento shove over two touchdowns in short order to take a 14-0 lead. Then Modesto, led by Mike Bacciarini, started using cut-back plays and at half time the invaders had put over two scores themselves and the tally stood 14-13. Right after the start of the second half, Doug McRae, Panther flash, broke loose on his own 20 and rambled through the entire Modesto eleven to the goal 80 yards away—the most spectacular touchdown of the entire season. At the end of the third quarter Modesto tied things up at 20 all and then went ahead to romp over the Panthers in the last stanza to a score of 39-20. Modesto made eighteen first downs to Sacramento's eight.

Sacramento J. C. next met and defeated Marin J. C. by a 19-0 score in a conference game. Perry Schwartz, who stepped into the fullback position when Jack Woerner was injured, stole the show. However, Doug McRae, as usual, proved the most versatile man on the field. It was McRae's speed and elusiveness that enabled Schwartz to punch the sphere over on line drives while the Mariners were watching McRae. John Ohrt played well that day, as did Joe Cleary, end, and Bob Hanna, tackle.

Two bad breaks against San Mateo J. C. cost Sacramento a tie for the 1933 grid title and shoved them into third place. McRae was the Panther star while Carlyon was the San Mateo flash. Just thirty seconds before the end of the first half, Parker, who had replaced Schwartz at full, threw a bullet pass over the head of James, San Mateo half, from the Sacramento 40-yard line to the San Mateo 20, into the outstretched arms of McRae who then outran and side stepped Gill, San Mateo safety, and went over to the touchdown. The conversion was wide. In the second half Sacramento outplayed San Mateo most of the time, but the breaks were against them. Intercepted passes and failure to cover men in the open game gave San Mateo two easily earned touchdowns and a 13-0 victory.

Roy Burner, Crew Manager

CREW

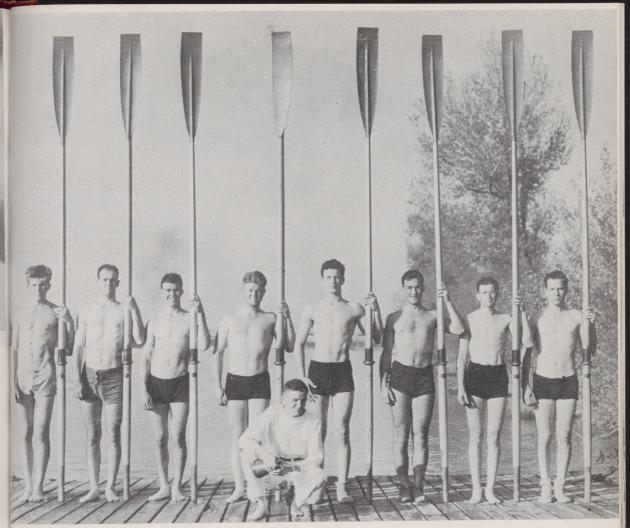

It was a small turnout of approximately thirty men that greeted Ed Salisbury, crew coach for the Sacramento Junior College during the 1933 fall season. Salisbury, a former local stroke and ex-stroke on the 1932 championship University of California Olympic eight, replaced Glenn Mercer at the helm of the oarmen for the fall semester.

Although the turnout was a big decrease from previous years, many veterans returned to form one of the strongest crew representations in the history of the college. The following men saw action last year: Eugene Berkenkamp, Howard Blagen, Jack Hammond, Charles Johnson, Robert Abbott, and Bruce Devinny. Berkenkamp is said by Ky Ebright, California coach, to be one of the most promising looking crewmen he has seen in years.

The schedule of the fall season consisted of three races on the Oakland estuary, November 17, with Sacramento losing in all encounters. The Panthers' first boat placed third, trailing the California Varsity transfers and the California Frosh first shell in the feature event of the regatta. The second race saw the second and third shells of the California Frosh finish a length and a half in front of the Junior College, while the three-quarter mile run was claimed by the Alameda High, the Panthers taking last spot.

This regatta brought to a close the fall racing season. When the curtain rang down on the crew sport, prospects for a winning combination during the spring season was considered high.

Varsity Shell

CREW-Continued

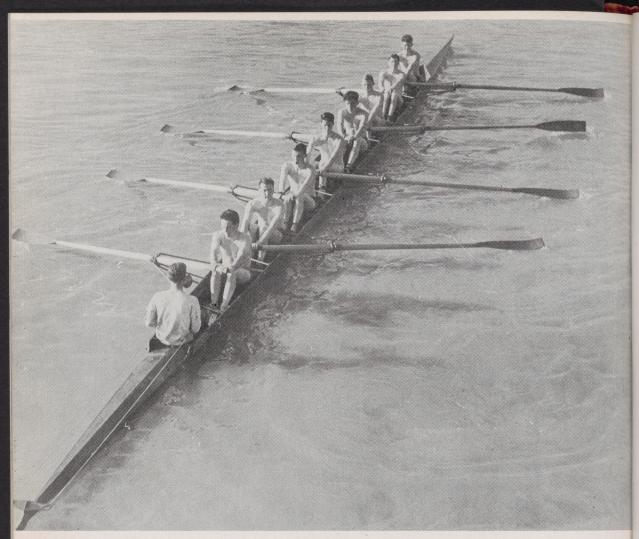

Early in February, Coach Glenn Mercer resumed control and issued a call for crewmen to represent the Junior College during the spring session. He was surprised to find that sixty-five men answered in response to his call. This was the largest turnout since a crew had its inception here.

Ed Salisbury, who coached the fall oarsmen, was unable to give full time to the spring turnout, so Mercer handled the entire coaching position.

The schedule for the spring session was rather formidable and large, and it included two new opponents, the University of Washington and U. C. L. A. On March 23, the Panthers opened the season against the California Frosh and the Alemada Rowing Club at Berkeley. At the time this goes to press, the Panther eight have a tentative date with the U. C. L. A. Varsity and Frosh in Los Angeles, March 30. University of Washington, champions of the coast last year, invited Sacramento to send their boats to Seattle, April 13, for a meet with the two Huskie Freshmen shells

April 21 the California Frosh rowed against the Varsity shell of Sacramento on the local river run. The concluding opponent was the Sound End Rowing Club on April 28.

Mercer had the whole fall varsity back intact and a large group of promising freshmen to work with, the men being unusually big and built nicely for crew work.

Second Shell

CREW-Continued

The vets who occupied the Varsity shell were:

Robert Abbott, James Bennett, Eugene Berkenkamp, Bruce DeVinny, Robert Didion, Charles Johnson, Jack Hammond, Kurt Frederickson, and Don Evereingham, coxswain.

Oarsmen for the second shell were: Jack Prudhomme, Harry Stewart, Nelson Dean, Ed Fogelsang, Ed Phillips, Robert Harper, Norval Phillips, James Loranger, and Henry Ellis, coxswain.

Seated in the third shell were: Fred Farrel, Bill Polk, Bob Thrall, Barney Dixon, Noel Schwab, Frank Mitchell, Kenny Hunter, Dave Fisher, and Ellis Appleton, coxswain.

Stroking the fourth boat were: Cecil McIntyre, Eric Lundber, Delbert Harter, Jack Zeitler, Ray Williamson, Berwyn Rice, Maurice Herbert, Barton Jones and Benny Davis, coxswain.

The fifth shell was composed of: Bill Spencer, Bob Slater, Tom Parsons, Bernard Scollan, Howard Hubner, Ray Ellis, Robert Burton, Frank Dutra, and George Blaufuss, coxswain.

The last boat contained Charles Bell, John Callnon, Peter Luppen, Leonard Nelson, Robert Shattuck, Bob Tuttle, Woodrow Wilson, Halm Stober and Coxswain Hillen.

BASEBALL

After a year's absence from conference competition, the Junior College baseball team, coached by "Hack" Applequist, entered the Northern California Conference play this year.

The Panthers won the championship in the 1932 conference and looked on the 1933 year optimistically but, due to lack of funds, they were unable to secure the necessary equipment that would enable them to enter the 1933 conference.

In spite of the year's lapse the 1934 turnout was very good. The following players hold the respective positions at the time of this writing: Catchers, Woody Scott, Reed Chandler, and Tom Louis; pitchers, Craig "Chops" Hyde, Roger Georgi, Lefty Rogers, and Bill Yost; first base, Ed Hughes; second base, Russ Marshall and John Keeshan; short stop, Boris Nazuroff; third base, Don Wilkins and Phil Wilkins; left field, Jerry Reinon; center field, Orval Tregellas; right field, George Hullen. Alternates include L. "Bugs" Bayer, Leo Miller, John Rokela, and Eugene Minaki. The team was managed by Joe Cleary.

BASKETBALL

Met with one of the smallest turnouts in the history of local basketball, and with the first game only four days after the initial practice, Coach Glenn Mercer immediately went to work and formed a quintet that seemed to be of a championship calibre. Orv Tregellas and Ted Barnes, the only two returning lettermen, held down a forward and guard position. Dick Stapler, center, and Ray Harris at pivot were two returning veterans lost to Mercer at the change of semesters last season. Dick Kolbus, a freshman transfer from Oakland High, filled the other forward berth.

The practice season brought to the front Woodrow Menke, Ben King, Charles Dawson, Charles Brockman, Harold Manford, Don Wilkins, Ed Hughes, and Harold Hessig who alternated at first string positions. Sacramento played fifteen practice games, winning but five and losing ten. Most prominent of the victories was a 49-25 win over the California Aggies. The Panthermen also defeated another Far Western Conference team when they split the Chico series, winning 35-22 and losing 33-17. Other wins were over the Napa Ramblers 50-42, Armstronc J. C. 39-34, and the S. J. C. Alumni 44-34. The locals reached their peak when they held the Olson Terrible Swedes to a 34-29 score after leading in the closing minutes of the game.

Sacramento's hopes for a conference championship flared high at the first of the regular league play when the local team won its first three games, scoring an average of forty points for the three games. However, from then on a lack of cooperation sent the team on the downhill grade, ending the season with five wins and seven losses.

SANTA ROSA SERIES

Santa Rosa was the first team to fall before the Panther onslaught, losing a double-header by the scores of 40-21 and 39-23. Dick Kolbus, Ray Harris and Ted Barnes were outstanding in these games; Kolbus making 31 points for the two nights.

MARIN SERIES

Journeying to Kentfield the Panthers met and overwhelmed a confident Marin team the first night by a 42-25 score. On the second night a determined Mariner team made every shot count to crush a disorganized Sacramento quintet by a 43-29 score. Kolbus again led the scoring with 16 and 13 markers. Stapler, Harris, Barnes, Wilkins, Menke, and Brockman were outstanding.

MODESTO SERIES

Stung by their first conference defeat the locals traveled to Modesto where they lost two heartbreaking games by 28-26 and 37-31 scores. Lack of cooperation among the players sent the team far down the conference ladder. Kolbus, ace of all conference forwards, was held to six points the first night and II markers the second game. Harris, Dawson, Barnes, and Hughes showed up well.

SAN MATEO SERIES

Hopelessly out of the title race the Mercermen prepared to stop the parade of the leading San Mateans. Playing gallant and inspired basketball the Sacramento team made two great bids for victory but were repulsed 40-35 and 44-43. The Macmen went on to tie with Marin for the conference title. Kolbus starred the first night with 17 points while Brockman and Tregellas gathered 15 and 13 points, respectively, the second night.

YUBA J. C. SERIES

Taking their last trip of the season the local hardwood artists journeyed to Marysville where they met the Pottermen of Yuba. Literally knocking the Panthers off the court the Yubans won two close victories by scores of 33-30 and 32-29. Kolbus and Tregellas starred for the losers, making 27 and 18 points, respectively, for the two nights.

MENLO SERIES

With their season ending and only three games won the Panthermen stepped out and slammed their way to a double victory over the Menlo five. Tregellas and Kolbus led the first onslaught, scoring 34 out of 41 points between them; the locals winning 41-35. The second night saw a hectic overtime battle with three men making all of Sacramento's points. Tregellas made 19, Kolbus gathered 14 and Barnes came through with five for a total of 38 points to Menlo's 37.

With the score at 34, all at the end of the regular time period, Tregellas and Barnes monopolized on two passes from Dawson to make two setups and give the locals a one-point victory.

After winning three successive championships in the Northern Californian Junior College Golf Conference the 1934 Sacramento Junior College golf team, at the time of this writing, was considered one of the best teams in the league. The Panthers were confident that they would make a good showing, if not win the conference championship, in the '34 spring tournament which was held at Palo Alto this year.

The Sacramento J. C. varsity consisted of: Karl Lundlee, Bud Hanrahan, Frank

Reynolds, Ed McCormick, and Royal McCarthy, manager. Larry Schei and Jack Burger were competing for a place on the team and at the time of this writing neither had been picked above the other for a varsity position.

Lundlee and McCarthy are the only veteran players. Bud Hanrahan is this year's medalist player.

TENNIS

At the time this annual went to press, the 1934 Sacramentô Junior College tennis squad had just begun organization for the defense of the various titles won by the Panther raqueteers in the spring of 1933. One meet had been held with San Mateo Junior College, and that had turned out rather disastrously for Sacramento due to the fact that the San Mateans swept the meet with eight wins to the Panthers one lone victory.

By the time the conference meet was to be held, it was hoped that the Sacramento J. C. squad would round into the same form of championship calibre that was so prevalent on the 1933 team. Coach Weldon was left without much material to deal with, but hard work and perseverance did a lot to bolster the tottering ranks of the title holding Panther tennis sauadron in the conference play yet to come at the time of this writing.

WOMEN'S SPORTS

The various women physical education classes on the campus serve as preliminary to the Women's Athletic Association. Those women receiving instruction in the same particular sport in the classes, and entering two or more tournaments in the said sport is eligible to the W. A. A. In previous semesters it was necessary to receive a grade of A or B in order to be admitted, but this barrier has been removed recently. The Women's Athletic Association was organized on the campus in the fall of 1926. It is affiliated with the Athletic Conference of American College Women. A governing board is composed of the officers of the association, the sport managers, class representatives, and the faculty advisor. The attention of the W. A. A. is not all centered on the promotion of interest in athletics, and of creating a higher spirit of good sportsmanship among the women of the college, but a varied program provides for banquets, hikes, snow parties, skating parties, theater parties, and sport dances.

The group of the women supporting archery has steadily been growing during the past few semesters. The class is now as large as it has ever been. It is a sport offered in the spring semester when each student may participate in the annual Sports Day. Each week a notice is posted on the bulletin board in the women's gymnasium, giving the names of those shooting the best scores. In this manner competition is bred among the students.

Golf is a comparative new sport on the campus, having been organized in the spring of 1931. In the class this spring there are eighteen beginning and seventeen continuation students. Instruction is received from Miss Katharine Thomas, who assigns each student a handicap figured from scores for eighteen holes. The William Land Golf Course proves to be an asset to the Junior College for the purpose of these students.

Wtih one hundred girls enrolled, the swimming classes are the largest this spring since their organization. The W. A. A. generally starts the swimming season early in the fall semester by giving a swimming party at Riverside Baths. A preliminary swimming season is enjoyed during the hot weather until October when the baths are closed. The regular season begins in March with the opening of the baths. Miss Katharine Thomas instructs the students in the various forms, the Australian crawl, the most popular of the strokes.

The enthusiasm for tennis this year is great. Sixteen students have signed up for the tennis tournament, and many more for Sports Day which takes place every spring. This sport, which relies so much upon individual skill and fortitude, always finds many followers in the sport enthusiasts of the campus.

Hockey has proved to be one of the most popular sports among the women players. The enrollment for Sports Day is among the largest. It ranks with baseball for popularity on the campus. The number of girls signing up for the latter sport makes possible finer teams for spring play.

SO Many Reasons . .

Perhaps variety comes first. I always find what I want at Western Auto, and the price is always low for the quality I receive . . . Then, too, there's a lot in knowing that if something ever goes wrong "Western Auto's" guarantee always protects me, wherever I may be, because every one of their more than 150 stores in the west will give me service just the same as our "Western Auto" store here in Sacramento . . .

I guess their slogan "You SAVE with SAFE-TY" at Western Auto Stores, and "You are always sure of quality" just about sums up the whole answer . . . ROY ALBRIGHT.
